"The line is a product of a force, it is a point on which a living force has been applied in a given direction" believed Kandinsky. The dictionary states that "it's a straight or curved continuous extent of length without breadth", or "a contour or outline considered as a feature of design or composition", "a notional limit or boundary as well as a series of related things" too.

"The Fine Line Between..." exhibit will foreground the role of drawing as medium, gesture, act and attitude and explores the pivotal role of lines played in multifaced works of featured artists. From the blurring of boundaries and checkpoints of nations, from how the same object can be represented in various ways, from the placement of a line to its complex paradoxes, lines in some way are what define us. The lines set by ourselves, for ourselves. As the song also tells us, there is a thin line between love & hate. Using prints, photographs, sculptures, paintings, drawings, installations or designs, this show captures the limits, and thus open us, of the line.
